

3
♠

Computational Scientist

Computational scientists use skills from mathematics and information technology to tackle real-world scientific problems which can only be solved through computation. They collect and process vast amounts of data and build sophisticated models that would previously have been impossible.

♥
3

