

9

Materials Scientist

Materials scientists study the properties, processing and production of existing and new materials such as metallic alloys, composites, liquid crystals, biological materials and thin films using mathematical models and computational tools.

6

